Describe your project accurately and how you developed your idea	Disobedience Divert, redirect an industrial manufacturing technique. Technical knitting is here brought to its knitting limit of rectilinear panels to access the three-dimensionality. I present containers made of recycled PET thread made in one operation, seamless. An incredible synergy of industrial partners is needed to produce a simple volume. Since this polyester was created from PET bottle recycling, the container function of these volumes seemed the most logical. Mono-material, mono-machine, multi-purpose, what's more industrial? From this research results a three-dimensional painting, a medium of contemplation, an industrial disobedience.
